Hitler Drops Sky Army; Cherbourg Battle Rages

SUPREME ADVANCE COMMAND POST, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 7 (AP)—A great battle between airborne troops flared over Cherbourg peninsula today as both the Allies and the Germans dropped fighting men from the skies over a wide area in the second day of the invasion of France.

Berlin admitted beachheads had been established over more than a 50-mile stretch of the peninsula and a depth of penetration of 12 miles was reported by Allied newsmen. Waves of Allied parachutists and glider troops poured down from a 50-mile long reinforcing sky train, seizing key positions and helping beat back Nazi tank-led counter-thrusts, and the Nazis also dropped sky troops.

For four months the Germans have been building an airborne army for just this purpose, led by Lieut.-Gen. Kurt Student who engineered the landings in Crete. RAF Mosquitos last night destroyed five Junkers-52 troop carriers.

Lieut.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley is commanding the first American Army in the assault on Europe, headquarters disclosed.

The Germans said they beat off new landing attempts near Calais, 150 miles northeast of Cherbourg, but later their reports indicated German coastal guns merely fired at Allied ships in the area, and there were no indications supreme headquarters was trying to invade there.

Allied invasion task forces have been sailing in feints past many points, keeping the Germans in doubt where the next landings would come.

In their 50-mile-long aerial train, three waves of U. S. Ninth Air Force gliders carried "a steady stream of men, equipment and supplies" to forces already fighting inland on Cherbourg peninsula, supreme headquarters said.

Airborne troops have seized bridges and roads, and joined sea-landed troops at some points, front dispatches said, and some towns have been captured.

NAZIS ADMIT BEACHHEADS SECURE

The Cherbourg peninsula, aflame with fighting again supported by Allied sea and air power, was strewn with colored parachutes of troops and engineers, rations and equipment dropped from the sky. Two of the reinforcing air waves were two-plane glider combinations.

The German high command admitted "superior forces" had established beachheads more than 40 miles apart, at the mouth of the Orne river and north of Carentan, and a DNB broadcast said American troops, steadily being reinforced, were engaged near St. Mere Eglise, between Carentan and Cherbourg near the peninsula's tip.

DNB said the Allied bridgehead at the Orne river was about 21 miles wide and six miles deep at points, but declared a thrust to seize the town of Caen, nine miles inland, had been repulsed. There were consistent reports of heavy fighting at Caen.

(The British information service in New York said the British

Nazi Version of 2d Invasion Attempt

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Berlin radio declared today "a second daylight invasion attempt at Pas-de-Calais was opposed this morning by German long-range artillery."

The heavily-bombed Pas-de-Calais area lies across the narrowest stretch of the channel from Dover on the English coast.

The German broadcast partly garbled, said "long-range guns of the German navy fired on enemy ships" seeking to land troops on the French coast, adding, "results of the firing could not be observed, as the enemy used artificial fog."

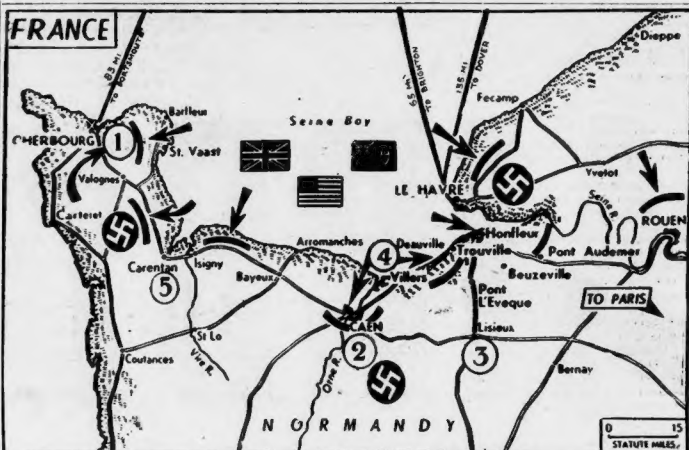

One listening post recorded the unclear broadcast as saying "the Allies this morning made a fresh attack in daylight across the Strait of Dover in the Pas-de-Calais region to land troops on the coast from amphibious landing craft."

The German radio acknowledged additional Allied airborne troops had been landed on the French coast between Le Havre and Cherbourg during the night, but asserted they had immediately been attacked by German forces and that hard fighting was still in progress with "extremely heavy casualties inflicted on the enemy landing troops."

"British parachutists landed during the evening of June 6 east of Le Havre and were immediately engaged by German forces. The majority of these enemy troops was wiped out at Deauville and south of Le Havre."

"More than 200 English soldiers, including numerous officers, were taken prisoner."

FRANCE—As reinforcements pour across the English channel today, Allied glider troops are reported to have secured key positions near Cherbourg (1), while pilots returning to their bases report a sinister glow over Caen (2) and a ring of fires at Lisieux (3). Germans say heavy fighting is continuing on both banks of the Orne from Caen to the river's mouth (4), and Nazi troops are in bitter combat with invaders at Carentan (5).

Invasion Bulletins

NEW YORK (INS)—The Berlin radio claimed today German forces had carried out a pincers movement south of Valognes in the Cherbourg area "and prevented reinforcement of Allied troops in that area." During the action, Berlin said, 28 Allied seaplanes and 51 Allied transports were brought down.

FOLKESTONE, England (AP)—German long-range guns on the French coast, some 150 miles above the Allied beachheads, fired across the Dover strait for nearly two hours today.

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Six Allied air-borne divisions totaling 25,000 men have been landed on the French invasion coast since the start of operations, Tuesday morning, Berlin dispatches said today.

LONDON (AP)—French railway bonds registered gains of up to five points and even German issues jumped from a half to one point at the close of "D-Day" stock market trading yesterday.

LONDON (INS)—The German-controlled Paris radio reports 6000 Allied vessels, escorted by heavy cruisers, now off the Cherbourg peninsula.

LONDON (INS)—Allied aerial superiority over the beaches of western France was estimated by observers late today at 200 to 1.

Eisenhower Still Directs From Britain

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower is directing the invasion of western Europe from an advanced outpost in England, supreme headquarters of the AEF said early today, denying a report broadcast by the Brazzaville radio that the commander had established headquarters on French soil.

Communique No. 3

June 7 (AP)—Communique No. 3 from Supreme Invasion headquarters:

Allied forces continued landings on the northern coast of France throughout yesterday.

Satisfactory progress was made. Rangers and Commandos formed part of the assaulting forces.

No further attempt at interference with our seaborne landing was made by enemy naval forces.

Those coastal batteries still in action are being bombarded by Allied warships.

At twilight yesterday and for the fourth time during the day our heavy bombers attacked railways, communications and bridges in the general battle area.

There was increased air opposition. Twenty-six enemy aircraft which attempted to interfere were shot down.

One Allied bomber and 17 fighters failed to return from this operation.

Other enemy air activity included an attack on our beach forces. This proved abortive. Four of a formation of 12 Junkers 88's were destroyed.

In addition to attacks on defended positions and other objectives in immediate support of land operations, railway centers, bridges, military buildings and communications at Alencourt, Serres, Amiens and Vire were attacked repeatedly throughout yesterday by our medium and light bombers.

Allied fighter-bombers and fighters flew low to attack enemy units and motor truck columns.

From dawn to dusk a vast Allied fighter force maintained a vigil over our shipping and over the assault area.

This air cover was again completely successful.

Airborne operations were resumed successfully last night.

Coastal aircraft attacked German naval units in the Bay of Biscay.

A strong force of heavy night bombers attacked bridges and roads and rail communications behind the invasion area, including the junction at Chateaudun.

Thirteen heavy bombers are missing. Light bombers were also out against the same type of target and night intruders destroyed 12 enemy aircraft without loss.

U. S. General Demoted

What a Few Drinks Did

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 7 (AP)—One of America's best known major generals was demoted to lieutenant-colonel and sent home for indicating an advance the time of D-Day.

The supreme command allowed this information to be cabled abroad today after it had been up several weeks for security reasons.

Supreme headquarters would not permit the officer's name to be cabled. He was one of the commanders of the U. S. Air Force. An Army man of long standing, he swiftly felt the supreme command axe after talking incoherently at a London cocktail party.

The conversation was said to have taken place almost two months ago when the invasion was expected almost daily. The general was reported to have said the presence of several persons:

"On my honor the invasion will take place before June 15."

His action was reported to security police by a woman guest and Gen. Eisenhower immediately ordered him reduced to the permanent rank of lieutenant-colonel and sent home after an investigation.

His name was not given.

Skytrains Pour In More Troops

WITH NINTH AIR FORCE, June 7 (AP)—Twelve C-47 troop carriers and 12 gliders were reported missing today from overnight reinforcing operations beyond the beachheads in Normandy. This was the first specific report of losses from airborne operations since the invasion began.

In three waves the C-47 skytrains and gliders flew equipment and reinforcements to the beachheads late last night and early this morning. Two of the waves were towplane glider combinations.

Air-borne engineers were among troops dropped. The planes also released paratroops filled with rations, ammunition and other supplies.

Returning fliers said the whole Cherbourg peninsula was a mass of white and colored parachutes this morning where troops had descended.

More than 900 C-47 troop transports and gliders were used in the opening blow. The "train," nine planes wide, was 200 miles long as it went across the English channel 300 feet above water. Today another "train," 50 miles long, poured in reinforcements.

Each C-47 is capable of carrying 24 fully equipped soldiers to-

Huge Allied Fleet Screens Troops

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Successful beyond all expectation in the first round of its huge invasion task, a great combined fleet of American and British naval vessels dominated the invasion routes across the English

Channel today, protecting the masses of men and machines rushed to support yesterday's successful landings.

British Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, Allied naval commander-in-chief, declared his forces were 100 per cent successful in the convoy job against an anticipated loss of 10 per cent of the assault forces.

"We have won the first round," Ramsay said confidently. "I can see no sign that the enemy will be in a position to beat us in the second round."

He added it was "remarkable" that the Allies had lost only a few combat ships and this did not affect the result of the initial invasion assault.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday in Washington that American losses were two destroyers and one LST (Landing Ship, Tanks).

The flags of two United States Admirals flew on two United States cruisers in the assault in which Allied warships poured thousands of rounds of shells into German coastal fortifications and beat off weak enemy attempts on the sea to forestall the invasion.

NEVADA IN VAN

Rear Adm. Alan Goodrich Kirk, commander of one of the task forces, directed part of the operation from the U. S. Cruiser Augusta. Rear Adm. Morton L. Deyo was in the Tuscaloosa. The staunch old American Battleship Nevada, re-armed and renovated after heavy damage at Pearl Harbor was in the van of the big naval ships.

Among the ships engaged was the famous British light cruiser Scylla, heroine of many a sea fight, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Sir Philip Vian, who was in overall command of the task forces engaged.

Also reported in action were the American battleships Texas and Arkansas, as well as the British battleships Nelson, Ramillies and Warspite, cruisers Glasgow, Enterprise and Orion and the Canadian destroyers Sioux and Algonquin.

Polish, Dutch, Norwegian, French and Greek ships joined in to make it a really Allied naval show.

Sweden Compromises

STOCKHOLM, June 7 (AP)—The syndicalist newspaper Arbetsaren reported today that Stanton Griffis, U. S. foreign economics administration representative, had reached a compromise with Swedish exporters on the exportation of ball bearings to Germany.

Invasion Jumps War Bond Sales

Massachusetts, along with the rest of the nation, showed a marked increase yesterday in war bond sales as news of the invasion of Europe came. F. W. Denio, chairman of the Massachusetts War Finance Committee, said all bonds purchased for the rest of the month would be dated June 6 in recognition of D-Day.

Warns Against Over Optimism

NEW YORK, June 7 (INS)—A warning against invasion over-optimism is sounded today by Merrill Mueller, National Broadcasting Co.'s correspondent at Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters.

Mueller broadcast: "Yesterday was a day of surprises. We certainly won a major victory in getting our major forces ashore so cheaply, although all features were not as easily won as original reports indicated. (After we landed on the beaches.)"

"The Germans started local counterattacks. All of these were beaten off. Otherwise today's communique would not report continued landings all along the front."

"The defeat of one such counter-attack was an outstanding British action. But guard against over-optimism. Remember this: We have only met locally organized countermeasures. In the next few days we face the major all-out effort to throw us back into the sea. That effort is now in motion, but I do not know whether it has been engaged by our initial forces and the first landing forces behind them."

Jam Churches, Common Rally

Matching the fervor of its fighting forces, men, women and children of Greater Boston today continued in deed and prayer a spiritual awakening such as this nation never before has seen.

"CHOTTIE" WEDS — Mrs. Charlotte Milburn Pickering, New York heiress, was a bride for the fourth time today. She was married in Miami to Serg. Earl H. Mote of the Army Air Forces. International News Photo

The solemn observance of D-day in church, shop and home was playing no one-night stand. It was headed for a record-breaking run.

Even the assurances that all was going well in democracy's battle brought no cheering celebration. A solemn populace was content to pray for victory and the safety of loved ones, leaving everything else in the hands of God.

CHURCHES THROGGED

Churches of every faith were thronged again at dawn and thousands began an early trek to Boston Common for a noon rally sponsored by the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

The meeting originally was scheduled as part of a nation-wide drive for greater religious unity, but invasion brought the decision to sponsor a patriotic demonstration as well.

Mayor Tobin was scheduled to deliver the chief address, with Victor A. Friend, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee of Catholics, Protestants and Jews, presiding at the decision of an outdoor poster calling for religious tolerance.

On hand to warn that the home front must back up its invasion forces with dollars was F. Winchester Denio, state chairman of the War Finance Committee, which soon launches the new war bond drive.

WORKERS PAUSE

Participating in the exercises are members of the east of the Coast Guard show, "Tars and SPARS." One of them, Victor Mature, the movie star, will lead in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The usual recreations of horse and dog racing, baseball and the movies again found patrons after a day which saw racing programs cancelled throughout the state and most of the nation.

Prayers for success in Europe and safety for our invaders were offered in many places besides churches and homes. Virtually every public assembly began with prayer, while workers at the Boston Navy Yard and many other war plants paused briefly for supervised supplication by priests, ministers or rabbis during the day's work. The same prayer for divine help also was voiced in courtrooms and spots where such reverent observations seldom are heard.

LINES AT CHURCHES

Intown churches were powerless to cope with the vast throngs who sought to attend services during lunch time periods. Long lines waited entrance at most of them and the supplicants were urged to visit their home churches either before or after work.

The D-day masses at Boston Navy Yard continue to be observed at 5:15 p. m., while noon-day services have been arranged by Protestants and Jewish.

As silent and just as thoughtful as the civilian population were thousands of servicemen either assigned to this area or on furlough. Most of the spots where they usually celebrate reported a big drop in patronage.

N. Y. Congressional District Goes G. O. P.

NEW YORK, June 7 (INS)—A precedent of more than 25 years standing was broken when Ellsworth B. Buck, Republican candidate for Congress, handily defeated Thomas V. Cantwell, Democratic-American labor party nominee, in a special election in New York's 11th district.

Buck waged a bitter campaign against the New Deal and 16 years in the White House for Roosevelt. The district, which comprises Staten Island and lower Manhattan, gave Buck 34,233 votes to Cantwell's 10,764.

Invasion Guide To F. D.'s Plans

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—Congressional Republicans and Democrats agreed today that the progress of the Allied invasion of Europe may have a profound effect on the Presidential campaign. There were some privately made suggestions that it may influence President Roosevelt's decision on a bid for 16 years in the White House.

Many of the practical politicians who make up the House and Senate had this slant on the campaign repercussions to military events: If the invasion goes well, it will be a break for the Republican presidential candidate because the voters will be more inclined to make up their minds on the basis of domestic issues. If fighting is heavy and a stalemate develops, the Democratic candidate will benefit because of disinclination to change leadership at a time of crisis.

Dead Flier's Medal Given Worcester Dad
WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—Posthumous award of the silver star to Second Lieut. Roger O. Pearson, whose father, Hjalmen G. Pearson, lives at 24 Frank st., Worcester, Mass., was announced today by the War Department. Lieut. Pearson was killed in an airplane crash last Jan. 16.

The silver star was awarded for his "courage, determination and airmanship" while piloting a B-24 on a mission to bomb an enemy rail center in Bulgaria Nov. 25.

D-Day at Air Base

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, JUNIOR
Publisher, N. Y. Journal-American

AT A NINTH TROOP CARRIER COMMAND BASE, Somewhere in England, June 7—History will probably record that the invasion of the continent of Europe started at dawn Tuesday, June 6, 1944.

As a matter of fact, it started before dawn on that day when paratroopers of the Ninth Troop Carrier Command in the black of night dropped by the thousands onto the soil of France miles behind the Germans' coastal defenses.

I flew down to one of their bases today—D-Day—and talked with Lieut. Col. John M. Donaldson, of Birmingham, Ala., who led his group—some planes crammed full of paratroopers, others towing huge gliders full of men and machinery—on this historic mission.

"We must have caught them all asleep," he drawled, "because nobody shot at us in the lead wave and while I could see them shooting at the second wave, all tow-planes got home safe. As a matter of fact we only lost four out of our wing."

USE AIRLINE TYPES

Incidentally, the plane used on this job was the same Douglas transport you are all accustomed to seeing at home on our airlines, which the transport command now uses to carry men and material to and from all corners of the world.

I am certain this type of ship will go down in aviation history as one of the greatest planes of the war.

While we were talking, a column of paratroopers walked by, headed towards the field. With a nod of his head in their direction Donaldson said:

"Stick around and you will see something worth your while. Some of our boys are going out again." We had landed at one end of the field and had been whisked around behind some buildings and hangars to reach headquarters, so I had not noticed the concentration of planes and gliders toward which Donaldson pointed.

I have hung around airfields a good part of my life but I never before had seen the likes of the sight I there beheld.

At the end of the landing strip, all facing in the same direction with their wings interlocked tightly as two parts of a zipper zipped together were four parallel rows of planes, over a hundred in number.

The outer two rows were the big familiar transports, while in the inner rows were the gliders, almost as big.

As we watched, the troops filtered into the gliders which I had been told were already partly loaded with jeeps, motorcycles and other heavy equipment.

ENGINES ROAR

Quickly, the propellers of the first lead planes, then those of the others all down the line began to turn over and almost immediately the roar of the motors became deafening.

They resembled four columns of birds with wings spread—the ones on the outside toed in a little so one could get behind the other even closer.

The first one of the planes edged forward until its nylon tow rope attached to the first glider became taut. Then with motors roaring, it slowly gained speed. We watched it rise into the air, its satellite obediently trailing behind.

By now I was standing in back of the truck in order to get a better view. Grouped around me were a bunch of kids, friends of those other kids bound for either glory or death.

In hushed tone the voice next to me said: "Goodbye, Johnnie, take of yourself."

Then they were gone two by two, until well over a hundred pair of wings had risen off the asphalt runway and melted into the silvery western sky.

Noxon Baby's Abnormal Traits Are Told to Jury

By PAULINE WARREN

PITTSFIELD, June 7—An expert on mongolism gave the jurors who will free or condemn to death John F. Noxon, wealthy corporation counsel accused of having electrocuted his defective infant, a complete description of the abnormal characteristics of the Noxon baby today.

Dr. Richard M. Smith, professor of pediatrics at the Harvard Medical School and chief specialist at the Children's Hospital, who made the report last August when the Noxon baby was brought to the hospital for observation, was unexpectedly placed on the stand by Asst. Dist. Atty. Bettigole. Ex-Gov. Ely, chief of defense counsel, was in the process of cross-examining Dr. George P. Hunt, Pittsfield pediatrician who took care of the Noxon baby, when the Commonwealth asked Judge Pianski for special permission to substitute Dr. Smith, as the latter had many commitments in Boston.

EXAMINED BABY

Dr. Smith testified he is a specialist in children's nervous diseases and that last year some 30 or 40 children suffering from mongolism were brought to the hospital.

The Noxon baby, he said, was definitely a mongoloid and he then gave characteristics of the type as observed in the baby.

The head was small, he said, the eyes slanted with constant oscillation and the ears were very small with no lower lobes.

The hands were normal with the exception of the in-curving of the little finger, a characteristic of mongolism. The muscles were flaccid and when the child was seated it fell forward limply. It weighed 14 pounds and was about 25 1/4 inches long.

Dr. Smith said that if the baby was placed on its back it was likely to remain there as its movements were sluggish.

He then stated all children with mongolism suffered a permanent retardation. They never grew mentally beyond the age of 6 or 8. Usually they are placid, he said, and if treated kindly can learn to do things. Some of them learn to dress themselves, but they require constant care and seldom reach full maturity, usually dying around 18 or 20.

Dr. Smith said he advised Mr. and Mrs. Noxon when they came to the hospital to make some special arrangements for their child.

"COULD MOVE HANDS"

He pointed out the difficulty of caring for the child at home where it would require special supervision and warned them of the effects on their older boy, John Noxon, 3d, who is a normal child of 15.

He suggested the child be placed in an institution or with some family adept in the special care it would require.

Earlier, Dr. Hunt admitted under cross-examination by Ely that the six-month-old Noxon baby had "ability to move its hands and arms without restriction." This followed the doctor's opinion that the baby could not shake a rattle given under direct questioning.

Up to Aug. 13, 1943 Dr. Hunt testified, he had not told either Mr. or Mrs. Noxon, Jr., that he suspected the baby was a mongoloid. At that time he advised them to take the baby to Dr. Richard M. Smith of Boston, a children's specialist.

Q—You knew the baby could move his forearms up to his mouth? queried Ely. A—Yes.

Q—He had no restriction of motion—He had full use of his arms and hands? A—Yes.

Q—Did you note any special improvement in the baby's condition during that examination? A—His muscles, particularly those of his back, appeared stronger than on the previous visit.

Dr. Hunt had previously testified the Noxon baby lacked normal muscular development and that his eyes failed to focus properly.

E. J. Frost Rites Set for Friday

Civic and business leaders will attend last rites in the Auburndale Congregational Church, Friday at 2:30 p. m., for Edward J. Frost, 72, of Central st., Auburndale, who died at New England Baptist Hospital after a long illness.

Joining Filene's in 1906 after serving as credit manager of the Western Electric Co., Frost worked his way from controller to director, asst. treasurer, treasurer, vice-president and president of the company, and was a director of the R. H. White Co.

He was as busy with civic activities as with business and aided in direction of the Boston Chamber of Commerce as vice-president; the Boston Municipal Research Bureau; the Newton Community Chest; the Newton YMCA; the Newton Hospital and Greater Boston United War Fund; Northeastern University; Simmons College; Lowell Junior College and Andover-Newton Theological School.

Jive and Jitter In Court Draw

Jitterbugging and jive battled to a draw with the higher arts today in East Cambridge court as Judge Stone dismissed the cases of Joseph DeSimone, 22, Suffolk st., Cambridge, and Chin Sing, 64, Central sq., Chinese restaurant proprietor, resulting from an argument over a juke box.

DeSimone testified he visited the restaurant last May 21, ate and had a couple of beers and dropped his check as he was preparing to leave. Chin, he charged, applied the boot as he bent over to pick up the check.

The Chinese declared nothing of the sort had happened and that the trouble developed over DeSimone's monopolizing of the restaurant juke box. His patrons, he said, preferred something besides jive but that DeSimone wouldn't give anyone else a chance to play.

Judge Stone said he felt Chin undoubtedly had kicked DeSimone, but dismissed an assault and battery charge. In like manner he ventured the opinion DeSimone was a "nuisance" as he dismissed a charge of disturbing the peace. Each was assessed $5 costs.

Wife First Witness In Trial of Captain

SANTA ANA, Cal., June 7 (AP)—Capt. Morrison J. Wilkinson, Jr., pleaded innocent before a general court-martial to a series of charges including attack and bigamy, and the trial judge advocate, in an opening statement, outlined in detail a long list of sex offenses of which the flier is accused.

Capt. Wilkinson, 28, of Washington, D. C., a veteran of combat flying in China, entered a general denial of nine charges. The death penalty could be invoked upon conviction.

The judge advocate, Maj. James D. Garibaldi, told the 10-man court he would show that Capt. Wilkinson on April 13 attempted to attack a 15-year-old girl.

MET DANCER

The following night, Maj. Garibaldi alleged, Wilkinson met a woman at a cafe and in her apartment attempted to force her into a sex act. Next night, Maj. Garibaldi asserted, the captain performed a similar act with another unidentified woman.

On April 17, Maj. Garibaldi declared, Capt. Wilkinson forced his strange wife, Margaret Gonzales Wilkinson, to submit likewise.

It was April 20, Maj. Garibaldi asserted, when the young officer met Miss Caprice Caprone, a dancer, at a cafe, drove her into the Hollywood hills and attempted to force her into sex acts.

Capt. Wilkinson was arrested on Miss Caprone's complaint.

WIFE IS WITNESS

Mrs. Wilkinson was called as the first witness. The prosecution alleges Wilkinson was still her legal husband when he married Lawrence Murphy in Phoenix, Ariz., in August, 1943.

Speaking of the alleged incident in her apartment, Mrs. Wilkinson, an attractive girl of 23, testified:

"He tried to kiss me and I resisted. He left, and I started disrobing. He came back, pushed his way in the room and told me 'you still my wife and you'll always be my wife.'"

"He threatened to disgrace me so that I would be ashamed to walk down the street."

State-Wide Raid Test Due Sunday

The state-wide air raid drill planned so long by the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety will be held next Sunday from 12:35 to 2 p. m., as scheduled.

Civilian defense officials quickly denied that the invasion had brought an end to such demonstrations here at home and said they were going ahead with the plan to drop 250,000 paper bombs on Bay State cities and towns.

The test first was scheduled for last December but bad weather brought a postponement.

Light Rain Hovers Coily in Offing

The lightest of drizzles pattered down on Boston today, then withdrew in haste as though embarrassed by intruding on a crowd of such long standing.

Cautiously, the weather man said showers were in sight, but he doubted if they would reach downpour proportions.

Crops throughout the State and much of New England continued to take a licking from lack of moisture for their roots, but cloudy skies at least prevented the sun from depleting moisture further.

G. Harold Noyes, chief meteorologist of the weather bureau, warned that forests were in a critical condition. Fires have already burned hundreds of acres. He predicted temperatures as low as 50 tonight, with clearing weather and winds diminishing to gentle breezes.

Pulls Body From Water, Finds Kin

Answering a call to pull a body from the harbor in East Boston today, William Walker of Corona st., Dorchester, fireman aboard a Boston police boat, discovered the victim was his brother-in-law, Cornelius F. O'Brien, 53, of Church st., Dorchester.

O'Brien, chief engineer aboard the Boston towboat Mercury, apparently slipped into the harbor and was drowned last night as he was leaving the boat for his home.

School Budget Goes to Tobin

Mayor Tobin was today tendered for his approval a $16,000,000 maintenance budget unanimously adopted by the School Committee for the 1944 fiscal year. Cut from the estimates was $130,055, largely on salary increases.

According to Business Mgr. Alexander M. Sullivan, the school committee's unexpended balances and credits are such that only $15,218,866 will need to be raised by taxation. The sum is $403,504 less than was required from the tax levy in 1943.

Nazis Warn French

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Residents of the principal cities of France have been warned by German occupation forces not to leave their homes between dusk and dawn on pain of death at sight.

Earlier, Miss Elizabeth McCarthy, Boston handwriting expert, testified that in her opinion, at least 240 of the 1668 signatures on Kelly's papers are fictitious.

Harrigan, candidate for the same nomination, charges fraud and other irregularities.

Miss McCarthy broke down the total figure by testifying that in her opinion 65 of the signatures from Suffolk county are "bad" or fictitious; 121 from Fall River and New Bedford in Bristol county; 25 from Essex county; 20 from Middlesex county and nine from Norfolk county. She testified that these figures were a minimum, as there are some about which she is uncertain.

WRITING GROTESQUE

She further testified that the most glaring instance is on paper No. 43, circulated in New Bedford, containing 75 names.

"I believe," she testified, "that there are practically no genuine signatures on this paper, with possibly one or two exceptions. The signatures are glaringly fictitious. Some are one or two persons may have written their own names and then written the other names. The writing has a grotesque appearance."

Glancing at paper No. 40, also from New Bedford, she testified: "There are no genuine signatures on this paper with possibly one exception. The writing has unnatural characteristics. The third paper from the same city is the same in my opinion. I believe that two or three persons wrote all the names on these papers."

"Paper No. 45, from Fall River, is not wholly fictitious, but I question some of the signatures toward the end of the sheet. The names written on the New Bedford papers were written by amateurs."

HAS ENOUGH NAMES

Miss McCarthy also testified that it is her opinion that 58 of the 60 names of Dorchester residents on paper No. 10 are fictitious.

Chairman Joseph A. Conway asked Kelly if he knew who circulated the New Bedford papers and the former lieutenant governor replied in the negative. Conway said Kelly should find out. Then Conway asked State Police Lieut. Daniel I. Murphy if he wouldn't like to know and the lieutenant replied affirmatively. It is understood Murphy will make an investigation with a view to possible legal action.

Chairman Conway said that, assuming Miss McCarthy's opinions are correct, Kelly still had enough bona fide certified signatures to prevent his name being removed from the ballot.

Meat and Vegetables To Be More Plentiful

CHICAGO, June 7 (AP)—There will be more meat and a "plentiful supply" of fresh fruits and vegetables for civilians this year, the nation's retail grocers were told today by two food industry leaders.

George M. Lewis, of the American Meat Institute, advised the annual convention of the National Ass'n of Retail Grocers that there'll be 145 pounds of meat for every civilian, as compared to 137 pounds last year.

The increase in fresh fruits and vegetables for civilians in 1944 over last year was predicted by William Garfitt of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Ass'n in a speech prepared for the convention.

Lewis said the biggest increase in meat would be in beef and pork, although there also will be more veal and lamb this year than in 1943.

'Mustache John' Resumes Will Fight Friday

The notorious confidence man, John "Mustache" Sullivan, was back at Deer Island today, after appearing in court that the mother who spent thousands of dollars trying to get him out of numerous scrapes always spoke of him as "the apple of her eye." He is serving a year's term.

His mother purposely cut him off with but a small share of her $47,000 estate, however, because of the money she had previously spent on him, according to testimony in Middlesex Probate Court, which will be resumed Friday.

The dapper Sullivan, opposing allowance of the will of his mother, Mrs. Della Sullivan of Cambridge, which left the bulk of her estate to another son, Cornelius T. Sullivan of Saugus, was brought to court on a habeas corpus Mrs. Delma R. Dubuc of Shepard st., Cambridge, a witness to the will, testified that Mrs. Sullivan told her "Johnny" was the "apple of her eye," but that she had spent thousands of dollars as result of his troubles. The witness denied that Mrs. Sullivan said she was in fear of her son, Cornelius.

Lynn Love Murder Defense Is Opened

Defense counsel for Charles P. O'Connor, 43, of Lynn, today began presentation of evidence in Salem Superior Court which they hope will free him of a second degree murder charge in connection with the death last February of Christopher Curley, 55, former Lynn fire department engineer.

The State concluded its testimony with the introduction of letters containing threats on Curley's life.

The letters, which the State contends were written by O'Connor, were sent to Curley and to Mrs. Melina Snell, 38-year-old widow of Echo pl., Lynn, in whose apartment Curley was murdered.

The letter to Curley stated in part: "You're having a swell time at my expense. Why don't you let Lena and me alone, because we mean so much to each other. Stay away or you won't be able to walk again. You'll be taken away in an ambulance and not to a hospital, but to a morgue. I'll beat your brains out."

The letter written to Mrs. Snell carried a complaint over not being able to contact her by telephone.

"What's the matter?" the letter asked. "If you have that lousy bum there I'll kill him as sure as I have a drop of blood in me."

Earlier, Mrs. Snell testified that Curley and O'Connor alternated in her affections. She told Judge Charles C. Cabot that while O'Connor was home on leave from the Army he stayed at her house, but that Curley moved in as soon as he reported back to duty.

Casualty List Three on Navy

The names of three Massachusetts men are on today's Navy Department list of casualties. They are:

Edward Arthur Gaboya, seaman, first class, USNR, missing; wife, Mrs. Emma Gaboya, 43 Tecumseh st., Fall River.

Joseph William Holland, Jr., motor machinist's mate, third class, wounded; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph William Holland, Sr., 1 Dartmouth rd., Andover.

Daniel Louis Rugani, hospital apprentice, second class, USNR, missing; mother, Mrs. Blanche Rugani, 59 Tappan st., Everett.

30 Witnesses Called In Brockton Murder

BROCKTON, June 7.—The state called up 30 witnesses today as trial continued in Superior Court or Stanley J. Kavalauskas, cafe worker, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Carrie Higgins in the rear of the Hotel Norris.

Opening witness for the prosecution was Carl Melcherson of North Main st., manager of the hotel, who said he had seen the defendant and the victim together the night before her body was found.

Navy Honors 7 Bay Staters

Seven Bay Staters in the Navy have been decorated or commended for heroic or otherwise outstanding performance of duty.

Aviation radioman 3/c, Albert Scott Moore, 22, of 781 Walnut st., Fall River, has been awarded the Air Medal posthumously for important contributions to the various aerial assaults on the enemy. Moore was killed in a plane crash.

Lieut. Comdr. William L. Phinney, 35, of 21 Shepard st., Cambridge, whose wife, Mrs. Margaret M. Phinney, now resides at 192 Silver st., Dover, N. H., has been commended for his part in the invasion of Italy.

Two members of a Navy Armed Guard unit aboard a merchant vessel have been commended for repulsing enemy planes, two of which were shot down. The men are: Coxswain Robert Edward Crease, 21, of 44 North Main st., Leominster, and Electrician's Mate 3/c James Robert Coyle, 28, of 174 Millbury st., Worcester.

Two members of a Navy transport plane crew have been commended for their part in delivering an urgently needed cargo despite extremely hazardous conditions. The two men are: Kenneth Rankin Ham, 29, Aviation Machinist's Mate 1/c, of 23 Marlboro st., Wollaston, and Edwin Joseph Wells, 19, Aviation Radioman 3/c, of 52 Fulton st., Medford.

Aviation Radioman 3/c Matthew Leo Buchanan, 25, a native of Rockport, whose wife, Mrs. Charlotte Edith Buchanan, resides at 26 Bartlett st., Beverly, has been commended for his part in a successful aerial attack on a Japanese heavy cruiser.

Strikers Tie Up 18,800 Workers

By the Associated Press
Work stoppages from labor disputes continued in more than a half dozen war industries today, keeping idle an estimated 18,800 workers, but there were indications of settlement at one of the major plants.

At the Wright Aeronautical Corp. plant in Lockland, O., where a walkout on Monday by 12,000 employees halted production of finished airplane engines, a company spokesman said a "large number" of workers reported for work today.

The dispute arose after the transfer of seven Negroes to works formerly handled by white employees.

New controversies were reported today, including two in the Los Angeles area affecting 1450 employees.

Other work stoppages continued at the Timken Roller Bearing Co. at Canton, O.; the duPont rayon plant at Old Hickory, Tenn.; the Lockport, N. Y., plant of the Simonds Saw & Steel Co., and the Victor chemical works in Mt. Pleasant, Tenn.

Portland (Ore.) taxicab strike was in its fifth day, while 150 bakery employees in Toledo were still on strike after their walkout a week ago.

Rule Billerica Woman Died of Illness

BILLERICA, June 7.—A verdict of death by natural causes was rendered today by Associate Medical Examiner Michael A. Tighe following an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Mary Moore, 76, of Friendship st., who was found dead on a chair in her home by neighbors, her clothing and hair a mass of flame.

Dr. Tighe said the aged woman evidently became ill while smoking and died before being burned. A half smoked cigarette was found on the floor beside her chair.

Veterans' Views Asked on GI Bill

By FRANK REILLY

Record-American Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, June 7 — the joint Senate-House conference committee on the GI Bill of Rights today awaited suggestions from the Veterans' Administration and the American Legion in the hope for a compromise on legislation that now, more than ever, needs speedy passage.

In an earnest effort to break a deadlock, members of the committee called on Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of the Veterans' Bureau, who long has had the respect of Congress and veterans' organizations alike.

Gen. Hines immediately ordered his department solicitor, Edward E. Odum, to confer with the American Legion committee which drafted the original measure, and the result of their deliberations will be turned over to the conference committee.

There was no guarantee that the conference group, which when it recessed over Memorial Day was said to be hopelessly deadlocked, would accept the recommendations, but it was hoped they will at least shorten deliberations by the conferees.

The Senate version of the veterans' rehabilitation bill calls for a maximum of 52 weeks of unemployment compensation for World War II veterans, while the House draft provides for only 26 weeks.

There are other differences which it is now hoped can be reconciled.

Woman's Body Found On So. Boston Beach

Thought to be the victim of drowning, the body of a 200-pound woman, about 45 years old, was found today on the beach in South Boston, off the Strandway.

The body was sighted on the sands, above the low-water mark, by Louis Sinkiewicz of East Fourth st., South Boston, who notified police. Dr. Hermann Wyoyn of South Boston pronounced the woman dead.

At Northern Mortuary, Associate Medical Examiner William H. Waters said the woman evidently was "a victim of the water."

Endorsed for Legion Auxiliary Post

Mrs. Catherine V. O'Connell of Dorchester has been endorsed unanimously for third vice-president of the American Legion Auxiliary in Massachusetts by the Boston Newspapermen's Unit No. 205, its officers announced today.

Fifth Army Punches 10 Miles From Rome

By NOLAN NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, June 7 (AP)—Fifth Army infantrymen chasing Nazi Marshal Kesselring's fleeing army, north of Rome to a point only five miles short of the lake of Bracciano.

Nazis Wait New Smash by Reds

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—A slackening of German attacks in the eight-day battle near the Romanian city of Iasi was reported by Moscow today amid mounting indications the Russian army is massing for a new offensive co-ordinated with the western invasion.

Berlin obviously expects a new Russian westward thrust. One Nazi commentator said "a strong Soviet offensive army has taken action steps" along the lower Danube.

Waiting to lend support to any such attack are U. S. bombers and fighters based in Russia. Striking from these bases yesterday for the first time, American heavy bombers, supported by American and Soviet fighters, wrecked a German airport at the Romanian city of Galati, at the mouth of the Danube.

A communiqué said six enemy interceptor planes were shot down and two American fighters had not yet returned.

War Jitters

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 7 (AP)

—The Griffin Evening News, like the Allied invasion, moved out its war extra "on schedule"—but a bit topsy-turvy.

In the excitement of issuing the edition yesterday, said publisher Quimby Melton, three inside pipes were put on the press upside down.

Deciding not to delay the issue, Melton ordered the press kept running and Griffin readers had their copies at 5:30 a. m.

Just a case of "invasion jitters," said Melton.

Another column has driven at least 10 miles northwest of the Italian capital after crossing the Tiber and still is forging steadily ahead behind enemy rear-guards.

Patrols probing west from Rome reached points three to five miles from the sea and nearly a dozen miles north of the Tiber's mouth.

Only spotty resistance was being encountered by the Fifth Army forces, but the Eighth Army was engaged in brisk battles with strong German delaying forces in the mountainous sectors east of the capital.

New Zealand troops captured Baisorano in their advance up highway 32 toward Avezzano.

Gen. Alexander urged the patriots to rise against the Nazis and do all in their power to sabotage enemy communications.

"The liberation of Italy now is well under way," the Allied commander declared.

The total of prisoners taken in the Allied Italian offensive still was rising steadily, with the Fifth Army alone now claiming more than 18,000.

The Mediterranean Allied air force joined yesterday in the many-front assault by sending between 500 and 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators into the Balkans. Targets included the oil refineries at Ploesti, rail yards at Brasov and Pitesti, and the "Iron Gate" canal at Turnu-Severin in Romania, and rail targets at Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Thirty-four enemy planes were destroyed, against a loss of 16 heavy bombers and 17 other aircraft.

Report Allies Land in Greece

ANKARA, June 7 (AP)—Ankara buzzing with reports of an Allied landing in the Peloponnese and, although there was no official confirmation, responsible quarters said it could be true now or shortly.

Peloponnese (Island of Pelops) is that part of Greece south of the Isthmus of Corinth and is a potential Allied stepping stone to the Balkan mainland.

A high source said an Allied landing there would not change Turkey's neutrality at this time. Opening of the western front in Europe was heard in Ankara with interest, but without manifestations.

(Later the United Nations radio at Algiers said Berlin had broadcast an Ankara report that Allied troops had landed at Patras on the northwest coast of the Peloponnese.)

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—The United States has extended full recognition to the new government of Ecuador, established by a brief revolution May 28.

Victory Garden on Common Beats Drouth, Harvest On

By FOSTER WEISS

Head of Home Garden Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School, and director of the Boston Record-American-Advertiser Demonstration Garden on Boston Common.

The weather certainly has been against the victory gardener but crops can be produced with a little patience and a lot of hard work.

Our garden on the Common, nursed along with a garden hose and sprinklers, has beaten the drouth and is producing high quality early crops. There are millions throughout the world who must be fed, and your garden must do its share.

With the invasion under way we already read that America must feed these people. It now looks as if this will be the critical year for world food distributors. Keep in mind that any food used must be grown now. The food situation is grave and must be backed 100 per cent by individual home growers even though the cost may be high.

For most gardeners the first few weeks are uncertain and cause much anxiety. New crops are beginning to develop and the garden is shaping up. By now it should be completely planted with the early crops ready for harvest. Our garden on the Common already is producing spinach, beet greens and lettuce with weeds falling out fast.

CARE OF TOMATOES

Most gardeners have now set out the tomatoes. It is not too late, however, if you have been delayed by dry weather. If you plan to stake tomato plants, it is necessary that you start the pruning and training program at once. If the side shoots or suckers become too large the plants lose considerable strength. Look for the lateral shoots which develop from the axils of each leaf and pinch them off. Use care and do not pinch off the terminal bud or fruit clusters.

In tying plants to stakes be careful not to tie them too tight as the string may cut the stem. Use soft twine and make the loop around the stake first to prevent slipping.

The flea beetle insect is now

Crawl Parade

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 7 (AP)—Mothers and fathers of 50 servicemen staged a D-Day parade of penance, crawling two blocks on their hands and knees to offer prayers at San Jose Church in the Latin-American quarter.

The parade lasted 15 minutes last night as more than 30 worshippers crawled over the rough road into the church. One 80-year-old woman who took part said she had three sons overseas.

Japs Hammer Into Changsha

By the Associated Press

Japanese troops have hammered into the outskirts of Changsha, vital Hankow-Canton railway city in China's central Hunan Province, Chungking reported today.

Pacific War

The Japs closed the final 22-mile gap to the provincial capital against Chinese resistance as fierce as that being put up by Japs on Biak island, where American invasion troops were edging toward airdromes in bomber range of the Philippines.

In China's Yunnan Province, however, Chinese troops knifing along the Salween front drove the Japs from Chiao-tai and reached Chiang-tso and Wai-tien.

Americans on Biak extended one column within a mile and one-half of Mokmer airdrome, stubbornly defended prize on the largest island of the Schouten group of Dutch New Guinea. Yank infantrymen were pushing along inland ridges from which the Japs were dislodged after throwing back the first American drive.

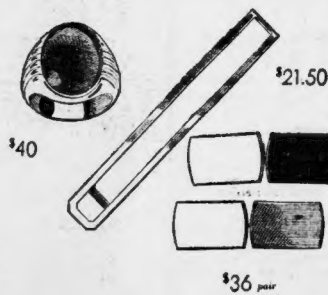

Southwest Pacific Allied airmen destroyed two coastal vessels off the big Dutch New Guinea base of Manokwari.

American planes from the central Pacific continued methodical blasting of isolated Jap bases in the Marshalls and hit Truk and other Caroline Island bases in attacks last week-end. Nauru, west of the American-held Gilberts, also was attacked.

Air Troops Battle

Sixth airborne division has captured and is holding bridges north of Caen.)

Begin also reported heavy fighting at Bayeux between the Orne and Carentan.

Headquarters has cautioned that strong Nazi counter-thrusts may be expected.

Lieut. Oliver E. Crespo, Corsicana, Tex., C-47 pilot who flew over the peninsula, said "I saw our ground forces moving inland in single file to contact the enemy. Farther west our troops were engaging him."

Berlin radio indicated the airborne assaults were spreading great confusion behind German lines, and said the Nazis had been duped by parachuting sacks of straw loaded with explosives that blew up when they touched.

"Satisfactory progress" is being made in the historic invasion which is continuing under thundering blows by great sea and sky fleets, headquarters announced, and cautious officers described the tricky airborne operations as "a complete success."

Field reports said American doughboys were making "excellent progress," biting deep into France.

Great bomber fleets dived out to blast Nazi defenses and troops today, possibly in strength equaling or surpassing the stupendous total of 13,000 sorties yesterday.

Mitchell pilots reported a great ring of fires at Lisieux, south of Le Havre, and a sinister glow over Caen, where Prime Minister Churchill had reported fighting in the streets. Caen is nine miles inland.

It was disclosed more than 900 of the Ninth Air Force's C-47 troop transports and gliders were used in the opening invasion thrust, forming a train nine planes wide and 200 miles long.

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm said six Allied airborne divisions totalling 25,000 men had been landed.

Headquarters still did not identify initial objectives of American, British and Canadian infantrymen and airborne troops.

Field reports placed U. S. troops well in the force of the advance, striking inland after establishing beachheads at several points, but said they were under heavy counter-attack early today.

The German High Command communique declared heavy fighting continued on both sides of the mouth of the Orne river, above Caen, and north of Carentan. Berlin claimed most of the Allied beachheads had been "smashed," with most of the airborne formations "wiped out."

NAZI COUNTERATTACKS

Nearly 30 hours after history's greatest overseas military blow had begun, the third invasion bulletin telling of the reinforcing said "satisfactory progress was made." No details of fighting areas were disclosed.

The weather, a source of anxiety, has shown a very slight improvement, but landings are still difficult.

The Germans still spoke of Caen as a battle site.

(Allied tanks are moving up to Caen, BBC said in a broadcast heard by the Blue Network.)

German broadcasts also said divisions of tanks had been hurled against the Allies east of Cherbourg, apparently a major Allied objective, 65 miles north-west of Caen.

"No further attempt at interference with our seaborne landing was made by enemy forces," an Allied bulletin said.

"Those coastal batteries still in action are being bombarded by Allied warships."

The Germans reported vigorous fighting over a broad front, and one Nazi broadcast suggested new Allied landings north of Le Havre.

But supreme headquarters flatly declined to give any details of the land fighting on the grounds the Germans were fishing for information and did not know yet the exact extent of the Allied attack.

U. S. infantrymen have been making "excellent progress" and penetrating deeply into France, field reports said. Extent of the advance was not disclosed.

NEW AIRBORNE SWOOP

Many veterans are in the American assault group led by battle-tired officers whose names have not been announced.

(U. S. and British troops have occupied a 50-mile stretch of the coast and advanced inland at some places to a depth of 12 miles or more, Herbert M. Clark, Blue Network correspondent, radioed from London. He said the Americans were moving inland swiftly to join airborne forces landed in the first hours of Tuesday's invasion.)

"Airborne operations were resumed successfully last night," the communique said tersely.

The American Navy announced there had been no more American naval losses since President Roosevelt's statement yesterday that two destroyers and one landing craft had been sunk.

The German navy was conspicuous by its absence, although the Nazi air force started to react violently toward nightfall Tuesday, sharply engaging the last strategic missions.

RUSH MORE AXIS TROOPS

It was apparent the German high command still was in doubt as to Allied intentions and had not yet brought the full weight of their armies to bear, although

Invasion Weather

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Invasion chiefs, admitted concerned about weather conditions in the Channel, were greeted by grey, cloudy skies as dawn broke today over Dover Strait.

The sea on this side of the strait on the second day of invasion was moderate, but it was blowing toward the French Coast, where conditions would not be so smooth.

Rain fell for some hours during the night. This morning temperatures were cool, with a light northwesterly wind blowing at times, carrying more rain.

Visibility had improved a little since dusk, and the clouds, breaking in places, were a little higher.

more Axis divisions' were being committed to the unfolding struggle.

Air attacks were concentrated in support of ground troops and communications "choke" points behind the breached Atlantic Wall.

The "completely successful" air coverage included heavy bomber attacks on railways, communications and bridges in the general battle area and low-flying fighter-bomber and fighter assaults on enemy truck columns.

Canadian fighter pilots back from their first sorties over the invasion coast today said "things generally are going well" on American-held stretches.

Berlin radio said that strong Nazi bomber formations had attacked Allied warships and landing craft just after midnight off the coast north of Le Havre. This was the area in which the Germans first erroneously announced Allied landings early Tuesday.

Later explaining that "dummy parachutists" had been dropped there.

Details of the German aerial strike, the first of any consequence yet reported by the Germans, are purposely kept back as yet, but results were good," the German Transocean Agency said.

Allied troops already have cleared Norman beaches of shell-shocked Axis coast defense units and are pushing on inland with the apparent objective of seizing the peninsula with its prize port of Cherbourg, returning airmen said.

Engineers were using their big bulldozers, landed in the first hours of D-Day, to hack out landing strips for succeeding waves of reinforcements which Berlin said hit the beaches during the night after a 100-mile trip across the Channel.

"100 P. C. SUCCESS"

Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, Allied naval commander-in-chief, made the startling statement that the Navy had been "100 per cent successful" in putting the original assault forces ashore in France.

He said that 10 per cent losses had been expected because of Nazi water obstacles and other defenses, but these defenses proved surprisingly ineffective.

Admiral Ramsay declared the forthcoming days would be marked by a supply race between those two wily antagonists of old Gen. Montgomery, commander of Allied ground troops, and Field Marshal Rommel.

Some reports reaching here said the troops fighting in the Caen area already had severed the Paris-Cherbourg railway, major feeder route for the Germans garrisoned on the 5000-square-mile Normandy peninsula, which also has airfields the Allies could use to secure a substantial foothold in Western Europe.

Official spokesmen declared that Allied casualties were unexpectedly light in the first day of operations. Naval casualties were said to have been "very, very light."

Unions Back Invasion

MELBOURNE, June 7 (AP)—The Australia trade union convention, applauding the opening of a second front in France, called upon trade union members throughout the commonwealth today to refrain from any action which would hamper the struggle to destroy Nazism.

Reds to Begin New Thrust for Berlin

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, June 7 (AP)—Russia is prepared to throw the great weight of the Red army into the growing offensive against Germany, Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, said today.

The great armies, which at Teheran gave solemn promises not to make a separate peace, are moving forward for a meeting in Berlin, the newspaper added.

Muscovites got up early this morning to read the freshest invasion bulletins, despite one of the wildest nights of celebration during the war. The Soviet press, in an unprecedented display, turned over whole pages to the momentous military operations Russia had long awaited. All newspapers published a picture of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Pravda, in addition to his three-column picture before an American flag, gave similar space to a picture of an Allied landing barge.

Maj-Gen. Galaktionov, writing in Pravda, said "blooded-in in the name of the common countries in the East, West and South will solidify even more the understanding of the great alliance."

"We are fascinated by the intrepidity of the fighters who stormed the coastal fortifications and the heroism of the parachutists who dropped in the rear."

All newspapers followed the battle with detailed maps.

There were parties celebrating the invasion all over the city last night, with singing in the streets a part of the gaiety. The Russians love such occasions, and this was one they had been awaiting for months.

By early evening all the vodka had disappeared from commercial stores, where prices are high.

Pilots Lead Plane In His 3d Invasion

By LORELLE HEARST

Special Correspondent, Boston American

LONDON, June 7—Here is one of the first Americans to invade Europe on D-Day—Lieut.-Col. Joel L. Crouch of 1-X Troop Carrier Command.

Flying in the lead of all our airborne forces, he was the spearhead of the spearhead of the spearhead, and Italy.

As for the kind of man he is—let me tell you about when he had just landed and had a cup of coffee.

Asked what it had been like over France, he thought for a minute, and then said very seriously and carefully:

"Well, there is some activity over there. We put a lot of our men down." This unarmed plane was one of the first to cross the French coast this morning.

I had lunched with Col. Crouch less than a week ago. He is a quiet, strongly handsome man in his early 30's, blond and blue-eyed—the type you trust and have faith in automatically.

When I met him they told me he was going to do a very important job on D-Day, and although I had no idea it was going to be that important, I instinctively knew it would be something very brave.

Although he is not the kind who talks easily about himself, I was able to learn that he has a wife, Jeannette, and a daughter, Anne, who is eight years old. They live in Riverside, Cal.

When he thinks about his family and his home, you can easily see how much he misses all that.

He has been away from the United States for a long time. He has been in North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

In fact, he won the Air Medal for flying the lead ship into Sicily during the airborne landings there, and the Oak Leaf Cluster for flying the lead plane at Salerno.

My, how this man deals in firsts! In peacetime, Col. Crouch—everybody calls him Joe or Colonel—was a pilot for United Airlines, flying passengers between Los Angeles and Seattle.

And that is just what he wants to do again when the war is over. In the crew of his history-making ing ship (a plain old C-47, without guns or armor or anything special), was Capt. Vito S. Pedone, co-pilot, who comes from Mt. Vernon, N. Y. He is a laughing, dark-haired boy, 22 years old.

Navigating the plane was Capt. William K. Culp from Denver, Col. He is all of 25, a square-jawed thoughtful sort of man.

These fliers, being the first out, were also the first back, and they said that the paratroopers whom they carried into France and dropped there were singing all the

How You Can Help 49 Billions Voted Victims of Invasion To Finance War

The time now has arrived when you can do something material for those fighting men for whom you are praying so earnestly. Heroes who poured ashore on the beaches of Normandy have advanced the first few miles toward Berlin and when that big job is over they will be coming home. There will be thousands of others—those in the invasions of the Pacific and other Atlantic shores—who also soon will have their home-coming.

So, to help provide for them the comfort, solace and sympathy they will need, the Boston Daily Record-American-Sunday Advertiser today is inviting its readers everywhere to contribute to its Fund for Wounded Servicemen.

OPEN TO PUBLIC
This is the first time the fund has been opened to the public. In the past, despite numerous offers of contributions from high-minded public citizens, the thousands of dollars dispensed by these papers for the entertainment and relaxation and gifts for servicemen stationed in Greater Boston, have been raised by these papers.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—America's Army fighting its way through western Europe toward the heart of Hitler's homeland won a $49,109,002.795 vote of confidence today from the House appropriations committee. That amount was recommended by the committee to finance the War Department for the year starting July 1.

While not a record for the department, the new fund exceeds by some $8,500,000,000 current fiscal year obligations and includes a carry-over of $33,672,971,000 from the record $74,211,249,961 voted the Army a year ago. It sky-rockets to approximately $390,000,000,000 the total obligations voted by Congress for the war effort since July 1, 1940.

Franc Notes Paid Invasion Yanks

ABOARD U. S. TRANSPORT

June 7—American invasion troops were made ready financially for the assault on France with a pay-day in franc notes, some dated in 1941 and bearing the authority of the Bank of France.

The notes were issued in four denominations—5, 50, 100 and 500 francs. They were based on an exchange rate of 2 cents American per franc, making the largest worth $10 and the smallest equal to about a dime.

The smallest note, about three by two inches in size, bore the printed notation "Series de 1944" and "Emission de France" (issued in France) on one side and on the other the tricolor with the motto of the French republic, "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite."

Of the four, only the large 500-franc note was exactly like its pre-war French equivalent. It bore the date of 1939 and was about four by nine inches. Each note carried a warning against counterfeiting.

Foreign Minister Of Poland Is Dead

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—The death of Col. Joseph Beck, foreign minister of Poland at the outbreak of the war, was reported by the Nazi-controlled Romanian radio.

Beck went to Romania in 1939 after his country had been invaded. The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, said he died after a long illness.

EXCEEDS $10,000

In the Fund for Wounded Servicemen at the present time there is a sum of more than $10,000 raised by the Boston Hearst papers since the beginning of the year from the various activities, such as the special Servicemen's races at Raynham Dog Track and the special performance of the Roller Skating Show at the Boston Garden.

That every wounded veteran arriving in Greater Boston may receive some slight gift or token of the respect and gratitude of the people of this city for their sacrifices, every man, woman and child with a loved one or friend in the armed forces—and who has not invited to share in this great philanthropic movement.

The Daily Record-American-Sunday Advertiser will bear every expense in the management of the fund, and in gratitude for the co-operation of the public, will print in their columns the names of contributors.

Back Them Up, America

THE GREAT INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE, which for both military and political reasons has been held necessary for an Allied victory, has begun.

It is a tremendous effort, involving millions of human lives and inestimable quantities of materials.

The fighting men of the Allied Nations are superbly trained for their mighty task, and have the spirit for it.

They have abundant and superior weapons for it.

Apparently the invasion has started well.

The early objectives have been attained.

The essential beachheads have been established and secured.

IF ALL GOES WELL, THE AMERICAN AND ALLIED ARMIES ARE NOW ON THE ROAD TO VICTORY IN EUROPE, AND PEACE IN EUROPE.

That such a victory and such a peace cannot be the final objectives of this terrible war, the American people well know.

As we have so often been told, this is not a local or regional war, but a great world war.

Even while Allied hosts are swarming ashore in France, American Forces are fighting and dying in the far-reaches of the Pacific—not with the same abundance and superiority of weapons, but with the same superb training and superlative spirit.

So even now, the Pacific war cannot be out of our minds.

But for the moment, our greatest forces are in Europe, our greatest effort is being made there.

Since this is the course to which we have so long been committed, and the moment now at hand is the one for which we have so long and largely prepared, it can have only one result.

THE INVASION MUST AND WILL succeed. America has the courage and confidence to MAKE it succeed.

Its hazards are terrifying.

Its price is frightening.

But this is the way we must go, and let us pray we may go bravely, skillfully and with utter conviction of the justice of our cause, and infinite pride in the fighting men who are bearing the cruel burden of the task we have chosen for them.

LET US FACE THIS DREAD AND FEARFUL HOUR WITH RESOLUTION, COMPARABLE WITH THE VALIANT AND LOYAL SPIRIT IN WHICH OUR AMERICAN BOYS AND THEIR ALLIES ARE FACING COMBAT AND DEATH.

Let us not refrain from the performance of a single duty.

Let us not abandon or neglect a single task.

But for the work we have to do, we should be on our knees in prayerful tribute and gratitude to the boys who stormed the beaches of France in the shrieking dawn.

Think upon the grim tragedy and stark horror of that moment.

THINK about the thousands who must die, and the hundreds of thousands and even millions who must struggle through withering fire and rely for survival upon quickness of eye, mind and nerves—upon the dexterity of brain and hand functioning up to and beyond the point of physical and mental exhaustion.

Remember these boys.

Honor them.

Pray for them.

Supply them with what they need while they are in the evil wilderness. KEEP FAITH with them.

This is their grim hour, their grand show.

Back them up, America.

Be WORTHY of them.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Across Pennsylvania ave. from the State Department is a very high-class joint named Blair House. This is the famous mansion in which distinguished visitors are bedded down while in our fair city, thereby saving wear and tear on White House linen.

Blair House has a long and interesting history, which I am going to skip, because of a grim suspicion that you do not like long and interesting histories. So, for all of me, you can go through life ignorant of Blair House's long and interesting past.

I will report, however, that the historic trap was completely redecorated some time ago. The new decor so impressed distinguished visitors that it became commonplace to hear cries of "Ooh!" "Ahi!" or maybe the Czechoslovakian equivalent of "Land sakes alive!" coming through the window.

Well, there was so much talk about the beauties of Blair House that a certain fairly permanent resident of Washington expressed a desire to see it. Inasmuch as I am no good at maintaining suspense, the name of this fairly permanent resident is Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

NOW THE housekeeper of Blair House is a very gracious lady named Mrs. Victoria Geaney. She likes the place so well she seldom leaves, meaning that there is nearly always somebody on hand.

Recently, however, we happened to have a nice, bright Sunday and Mrs. Geaney decided to take a walk. And, naturally, it happened that this was the day FDR conceived his yearning.

The President made known his pleasure to Howell G. Crim, head White House usher. Crim stalked across to Blair House and found it locked.

He came back to the White House and began demanding who might have the keys. Nobody knew.

Crim went to the President and tried to stall. He suggested that a week day might be a nicer time to view Blair House. FDR retorted he was too busy weekdays and wanted to see it now.

Well, the White House staff and half the Secret Service began scurrying around for the keys. Finally somebody suggested it might be an idea to consult the watch officer at the State Department.

"Sure, I know where they are!" said the watch officer. "They are where they're always kept. In the safe of the Protocol Division."

An exalted protocol officer had to be routed out and do a Jimmy Valentine on the safe. But FDR got to see Blair House!

AND WHILE I am on the subject, I would like to report a very strange thing that befell Steve Early, FDR's press secretary.

Mr. Early rose early (no pun, confound it!) the other day and reached the White House betimes. All was silent, or, at least it was, until Mr. Early started walking across the flagstones.

Soon, he noted a weird phenomenon. One of his feet made a sharp clicking sound as he put it down. But the other was soundless!

"My goodness!" said Mr. Early to himself. "This is indeed eerie! Do you suppose I have been hoodooed and that one of my feet has gone Republican?"

He became so concerned over the uncanny incompatibility of his dogs that he sat down on a stone and examined his shoes. He heaved a sigh of relief.

He had on odd shoes. One had a rubber heel; the other not!

REP. WINIFRED STANLEY, B. B. B. (beautiful blonde from Buffalo), was alone in her office late the other day when three men and two women strolled in.

"We are a delegation from Brooklyn," they announced. "We are here to see how the various Congressmen work."

"That is very public-spirited of you," said Miss Stanley. "Please let me show you around."

She exhibited the sights of her office, which included three pictures of Abraham Lincoln. A picture of Thomas Jefferson and a ski trail view. The visitors seemed singularly unimpressed.

"I really put myself out to be helpful," said Miss Stanley, "because I felt that if they had come all the way from Brooklyn just to study me and my Congressional efforts they were entitled to my fullest co-operation."

Miss Stanley had the Brooklynites sign her visitors' book and then escorted them to the door.

One of the men looked at the door panel and slowly read the legend:

"Winifred Stanley of New York." He turned to Miss Stanley inquiringly.

"Say, tell me," he said, "how do you like working for this fellow Stanley?"

not understand mutual betting. They overlook the fact the same money is bet over and over. If a crowd brought $300,000 to a track, bet that much on the first race and kept betting what money they had on each of the remaining races the betting total for the day would be about $1,282,000. A 20 per cent tax on this would be $256,400. The crowd would have $3,600 left of its $300,000. The Federal and State governments and the track would have the rest. When it comes to grinding exceeding small, the mills of the gods are just not in it with the mutual machines.

SIDELIGHTS: Ever try potato pancakes and asparagus? Neither have I. Note it stated this is the favorite dish of Lieut. Comdr. Frederick P. Gehring, the heroic chaplain who distinguished himself at Guadalcanal. When Comdr. Gehring gets home on leave his mother always has the aforementioned dish ready for him. . . . Am asked if I like to dance and who taught me to trip the light fantastic. I am a dance fan. A red-haired girl from Providence, R. I., gave me my first worthwhile instruction in dancing. In the middle of a dance with her she said to me: "Listen, do you know why you are such a rotten dancer? You talk too much. Listen, to the music. Keep in time with it. Relax!"

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: "Most of the fighting against Japan will be done by the Navy," states a military expert. I am no expert, but I don't think the Navy will do any more fighting than the Marines and the Army Air Force. Consider the landings the Marines will have to make. Also, the land fighting they will have to do. . . . During the first year after the war veterans will be helped with interest-free loans to enable them to buy a business, a farm or get started in civilian life. So if you're in the armed services start figuring on what kind of small business you would like to establish when the fighting is

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, June 7—Well, all the guessing is over about "Junior Miss." The winner is not Shirley Temple, as often rumored, who blossoms like a flower in "Janie."

Honestly, this Reynolds girl is a honey. She is a younger Teresa Wright with a freshness and verve all her own and when the younger generation get a look at her as "Janie," I agree with Jack Warner that she will be the next big league star.

Warners paid the record price of $425,000 for "Junior Miss," which gives an even better idea of what her studio thinks of Joyce. She is also the choice of Sally Benson, the author, who saw a rough cut of "Janie" and was captivated by the little star.

IF YOU FELT that Charles Jackson left his alcoholic hero Don Birnam, high, but far from "dry" in "Lost Weekend" without solution, you'll be happy to know a sequel is on the way. Jackson told me, at Judy Garland's party, he is writing "It Worked Out," with Don Birnam again featured. He said so many people felt there was no help for Birnam and no way of curing him of his addiction to drink, that he felt he should do something about it. He, himself, hasn't touched liquor in eight years and there are so many interesting stories to tell why, but until he decides to tell the story I think we had better let it go at that.

MARC CONNOLLY has an interesting and different writing assignment. He is taking a sentiment on a birthday card, written by Richard Stern, and converting it into a script for Gary Cooper. Marc won't talk about it because he doesn't know how it will work out. If he gets the story written the way he wants it, it will be Gary Cooper's first independent film for International Pictures and my guess is that it is probably well on the way.

I HEAR entre nous that M-G-M wants very much to buy Marion Hargrove's sequel to "See Here Private Hargrove," but the young author is asking $200,000 which Boss Louis B. Mayer said was too much for an original story. Maybe a compromise can be effected since "See Here Private Hargrove" with Robert Walker, has been one of M-G-M's most successful movies and certainly one of the best war comedies of the year.

ONE OF the finest of all the vicious drives, and one that brings great personal happiness to the boys is the Examiner's War Wounded Fund. There are many gifts sent the wounded men, but actually to have money put in their hands for the things they want, is an inspired idea. That is why everyone in Hollywood wants to have a part in the mammoth show to be held at the Hollywood Bowl for this grand cause next Sunday. The performers sound like a producer's dream of a cast: Frank Sinatra, Mickey Rooney, Frances Langford, Abbot and Costello, Carmen Miranda, Ella Logan, Jerry Lester, Borrah Minevich, Connie Haines, Earl Carroll's Show Girls and many, many others.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The Charlie Chaplins are visiting friends in Connecticut. Charlie and his bride left town very quietly and because Oona expects her baby in August, he was eager to find a place where she could be quiet and rest. Joan Berry's mother is asking in court Thursday that a definite date be set to try the paternity case. While she is asking in the name of the baby for support, Chaplin's lawyers will demand an accounting for the lump sum settled on the baby pending outcome of the blood test.

The tension and anxiety of Day was apparent among those lunching at the Ritz and other fashionable restaurants. Usually gay and chatty, mothers and young marrieds talked quietly of loved ones in service and wondered if any of them were in the many thousands of Americans crossing the channel.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Manhattan Gitter: Jack Pickens doing an impromptu duet with a GI Sinatra at the USO's Sixth ave. recording booth . . . June Havoc cutting in on Betty Allen at the Stork . . . Harry James displaying snapshots of his favorite pin-up girls, Betty and Victoria, at the Latin Quarter rindside . . . Miriam Hopkins, who doesn't bother about makeup, looking so, so up-Hollywood at the Chateau-briand . . . Wendell Willkie, the ex-candidate, looking merry over a chocolate sundae at Schrafft's 57th st. sandwichery . . . Phil Regan, the pin-up Grandpop, at Leona & Eddie's . . . Mae West looking very warm—even for Mae West—giving out that Old Blonde Magic at the Coq Rouge . . . ZaSu Pitts staring in astonishment as boogie-woogie artist Maurice Rocco shakes his piano at the Zanzibar . . . Vic Mature strolling E. 53rd st. in the snappiest white uniform—such shoulders!—the town has ever seen.

FABLE FROM FIFTIES: Almost any afternoon, in the dim and murky second hand stores that dot the less fashionable streets of our town, you may encounter Gertrude Niessen, the torrid tact of Broadway.

Gertie is conducting a quest which allows her little rest, and her searchings have so far proven gratifyingly successful. She's a collector. You won't be able to guess what she collects, though—it's not ivory, emeralds, miniatures, music boxes, or paper weights. Nothing half so chic, and yet, in a way, something much more romantic.

She gets a lot of fan mail from soldiers, and many of them are boys in far off places where you can't plug an electric socket into a wall and make jazz come out of your phonograph. So Gertie scans the city's hideaway shops in search of those antiquated phonographs with the side handles and the giant horns for which boys in primitive parts of the globe plead in their letters home. She's found and shipped out half a dozen so far, and her quest continues.

ALL AROUND TOWN: Columnist Cornelius Vanderbilt and divorcee Ann Kieess are a new combination these nights at El Morocco . . . Honeychile Wilder's husband has returned to South America. (After a couple of months with Honeychile's South accent, he's probably gone back to brush up on his Spanish!) . . .

Hal Wallis and Jack Warner, who had such a scrap and weren't speaking, are now lovey-dovey again . . . The beautiful blonde Frances Robinson seems to have cornered the market on that attractive Moss Hart . . . Gloria Swanson is wearing the season's most striking outfit—a black gown with a Mephistopheles cape drap around her shoulders, and devil's horns made of black sequins growing out of her sleek dark hair. Pretty dramatic, Bud, I'll say.

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.—Lana Turner may do "Red Dust" for Metro is preparing this for her and John Hodiak. The new script will bring the Indo-China back ground up to just prior and during the Jap invasion . . . Hal Wallis is now very interested in buying "The Voice of the Turtle" . . . Betty Field is talking a deal . . . Jimmy Ritz and Ramsey Ames are now a thing . . . Joan Fontaine's contract may be sold to Paramount . . . The Zoltan Kordas expect a baby . . . H. Allen Smith has signed an agreement with Doubleday Doran to compile an anthology of humor. He will start work when he completes "Lost in the Horse Latitudes" . . .

Danny Kaye, as much as he likes the movies, is talking about doing a Broadway show . . . Now that Billy Wilder and Charles Brackett have purchased "The Lost Week-End" they would like to get Cary Grant to play in it . . . Jerry Brewer claims that this book is a phoney, for where can you get all that liquor these days.

BETTY FIELD will play the role of Bessie in "The Corn Is Green" . . . Eddie Small is trying to purchase "Papa's Wife," the famed Anna Held musical, and intends to make it into a picture with Simone Simon . . . The Guild and Union Council will hold a mass meeting to oppose the Motion Picture Alliance at the American Legion Stadium . . . Jess Barker is now voicing with Angeles Lansbury . . . "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" has been reissued and is playing many towns after the showing of "Adventures of Mark Twain" . . . Monogram has changed the title of "The Girl Next Door" to "Oh, What a Night!"

BETTY GRABLE is telling friends that she believes she is doing too much singing and dancing on the screen. Helen Broderick goes into the Yip Harburg-Harold Arlen-Broadway musical, "Bloomer Girl."

PHIL SILVERS, as well as appearing in "Something for the Boys" will get screen credit for additional dialogue . . . Jack Skirbl would like to get Jack Benny and Fred Allen together again in a picture . . . George Elder, the prop man on the set of "The Thin Man Goes Home," had to order chicken soup from the commissary for a certain scene in the picture. It arrived with plenty of rice and broth, but no chicken. Elder paid no attention to this, but the next day when he had to repeat the order and the soup came without chicken in it, he wondered why. He phoned the commissary asking for chicken in the chicken soup and was informed: "There isn't any chicken in soup for photographic purposes unless a special requisition comes through."

Boston After Dark

IN TWO DAYS, TWO FORMER PARTNERS of Ruby Foo have died suddenly . . . Al Gaines, youngest of the Boston trio of brothers who have made their marks in Florida nightclub and hotel operation, was Ruby's partner in the Miami Beach Ruby Foo's Den, which the military took over as a commissary two years ago . . . Joe Pike, who died in New York early Monday, was Ruby's partner both in the New York Den and the Washington restaurant which carries Ruby's trademarked name . . . Mr. Pike lived for years in Brookline. His daughter is Bernice Parkes, the lovely red-haired singer who sang at the Ritz Ruff two summers ago.

AL GAINES WAS A VICTIM of an airplane crash last night in Florida . . . A devotee of flying, he bought a plane of his own last month . . . He was in Boston last week, and his brother Benny, former owner of the Boston Mayfair and the Miami Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel and present owner of the Miami Beach Hotel Barclay, received the news of his brother's death at a Boston hotel . . . He airplanned at once for the South.

"INVASION NIGHT" in the hotels and nightclubs was featured by an impromptu pianoforte study on the part of Victor Borge. "The ding dong daddy of Denmark," as he was introduced Sunday on the Basin st. program . . . It was marked also by a falling off in business, which, as Michael Redstone of the Latin Quarter said, was almost imperceptible—the nights being from a business standpoint, regularly bad . . . Customers had their minds on the beachheads in France and other battlefronts, obviously . . . Yet Mr. Borge's tremendous performance at the Terrace Room was so stirring that the great piano-playing comedian elicited no less than salvos of applause.

THE "UNMELANCHOLY DANE"—who is an inspirational performer—was baffled at the problem last night presented to any thoughtful entertainer . . . "I just couldn't bring myself to going the regular routine," he said. "It seemed out of the mood" . . . So, without much pre-conception, Victor scolded himself at the Terrace Room's piano (which incidentally needs a paint—or polish job) and began to improvise . . . Leo Reisman, the maestro who shares headlining with Borge and Tabha, the exotic dancer, at the Statler, had this to say about his conferee's epochal nine minutes at the piano: "It should have been recorded. If Victor or any other artist had worked four years on a routine to fit the historic D-Day we have just gone through, it would have been impossible to surpass the formation of that performance. It was marvellous and the terrific response from that audience came chiefly from folks who are not of the cognoscenti, musically. I mean."

THE BORGE ROUTINE—which he doesn't think he could reconstruct—started with "The March of the Dimes," figures from "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and part of Beethoven's Fifth were woven into the performance. The pianist finished with "My Country 'Tis of Thee" . . . He played the medley as his mood moved him, and without a minute of rehearsal . . . It was beautiful, and thrilling.

Fake Exposures Liked

By BETTINA BEDWELL

SUNDAY I spoke again about the way the styles are tending to more and more exposure of the girl inside them. There's another school of thought that may be even better, and that is the one going in for fake exposures. A dress that looks, for instance, like it had no midriff section at all, but it's only faking—there is material there, tricked out to look much like the flesh. And so forth. This kind of thing is an idea of Jo Copeland, and it is something any lady could wear. You can see the effect in Miss Dulin's sketch. This stunning dress and jacket are made of black faille crepe, and the sleeveless dress has a flesh-covered midriff section, veiled with black chiffon and appliqued with point lace motifs.

A corsage of the lace and chiffon adorns the brief bolero jacket.

22—Boston American, Wed., June 7

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

MAKEUP IS AN ART IN ITSELF . . . an art form are constantly seeking more knowledge about . . . those finishing touches that make a gal look well-groomed at all times.

As hectic as these fraughtful days are now . . . the know how of looking fresher . . . more smartly-groomed . . . more femininely attractive in anticipation of when "Johnny comes marching home again" . . . is a basic MUST.

An "artist portrait" makeup is a new makeup approach we've been hearing about . . . and we must admit we're favorably impressed. Quite frankly while I never had my portrait painted . . . it is historical knowledge how such painters as Stuart, Raeburn and our own Samuel Morse went about transmitting to their canvases the near-to-life-like skin-tones of their subjects.

Clean Feeling Makeup

And, it is a step in the right direction for a cosmetic house to pattern their makeup hints on the ideas of the old masters themselves. So it is wise to use a moisture-resisting face powder for a fresh, clean-feeling makeup . . . then your lipstick for cheek-color balance . . . and then properly tint your cheeks with rouge to harmonize your lip coloring.

An artist would color your entire forehead very faintly . . . and ever-so-lightly around the lower part of your cheeks or jaw-bone . . . and as a finishing note . . . softly "pink up" your ear lobes to give a warm glowing look . . . as radiant as a child's skin would be in perfect health.

Automatic Powder Puff

You can do this most easily . . . with an automatic rouge applicator which comes in the new artist red shade . . . light, medium or dark to suit your taste. You'll not only love the effect of this blood-color rouge . . . it's so natural and so alive-looking on your skin . . . but you'll be thrilled with its automatic applicator. There's a twin item that goes with it . . . an automatic powder puff . . . and it's true . . . the powder is in the puff . . . so you don't flout your clothes when you want to perk up . . .

What to Do About An Artichoke

By MRS. BEECKMAN:

To me artichokes are certainly a problem. I've never eaten one, and I have a hunch that sometime I'll have one served to me, and I won't know what to do with it. So that I'll be prepared, will you tell me, please, just how to eat this "critter"?

JEAN: These "critters" are too delicious, Jean, for you to pass up! Why don't you cook one for yourself and have a private dress rehearsal eating it? You eat an artichoke with your fingers, a leaf at a time. Dip the soft edible end of the leaf in the sauce, eat it, and then put the remainder of the leaf at the side of the plate. When you come to the center, scrape away the prickly part with a knife, and eat the "heart" with a fork. Simple, eh?

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

IF REFRESHMENTS are declined, don't urge, "just a little."

Use Name in Letters Too

Have you the engaging habit of using a person's name quite often when you are talking to him or her? Do you carry this pleasing habit over into your letters? I hope you do. It gives a warm touch of friendliness to write, "We're all looking forward to seeing you, Elaine, and we do hope you can come. Writing the "Elaine" in this sentence makes a gracious bow.

DO AS THE ARTIST DOES . . . give yourself a portrait makeup . . . a warm, glowing look as radiant as a healthy child's skin . . . with two beauty automatics that are the last word in effectiveness.

Serve Bacon at Any Meal

By MARTHA LEE

BACON IS ABOUT the smartest meat purchase you can make. As an anytime-of-day meal, it's quick to fix and good to eat for breakfast, lunch, dinner or snacks.

Another reason for keeping lots of bacon on hand is that it's a concentrated source of food energy and important to the diet of hard-working people.

Keep bacon fresh and sweet in a cool, dark, dry part of the refrigerator. But remember—don't let bacon stand open on the kitchen table, for it loses its keeping qualities and its flavor. Take from the refrigerator only the amount you intend to use.

Crisp, slightly curled, evenly cooked bacon requires real skill.

BROILING. This is the most flavorful way to cook bacon. Place strips on a pre-heated broiler rack and broil 2 or 3 minutes to a side, turning only once. If you have only a small quantity of bacon to prepare, use a shallow pan with a wire rack in the bottom for a broiler tray.

BAKING. This is an easy method to use when cooking large quantities of bacon at one time. Lay bacon strips on a rack in any shallow pan. Bake on top shelf of oven at 400 deg. F. for 15 to 18 minutes, or until desired crispness is reached.

POTATO-BACON SALAD
4 cups diced, hot potatoes
3 slices crisp bacon, crumbled
12 stuffed olives, chopped
1 pimiento, chopped
2 tbsp. chopped chives
1/2 cup French dressing

Mix thoroughly and let stand until cold. Serve in salad bowl lined with salad leaves, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

BACON OMELET
6 eggs
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
6 tbsp. milk
3 tbsp. butter or other fat
3 strips cooked bacon, minced

Beat eggs well, then beat in seasonings and milk. Melt fat in heavy frying pan, and when hot pour in egg mixture. Cook over a medium heat, lifting the edges as they cook, allowing the uncooked mixture to run under and around the cooked portion. Sprinkle cooked minced bacon over omelet. When bottom is browned, fold in half or roll, and slip onto a hot platter. Garnish with parsley. Makes 6 servings.

BACON CORNBREAD
1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
1 cup sifted flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
3 tbsp. shortening, melted
6 strips cooked bacon, minced

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine well beaten egg and milk, and add to dry ingredients. Stir in shortening and minced bacon. Pour batter in 2 greased 8-inch layer cake pans and bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 2 layers.

My Day By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday—So at last we have come to D-Day. The first people I saw seemed very much excited. Curiously enough, I have no sense of excitement whatsoever. It seems as though we have been waiting for this day for weeks, and dreading it, and now all emotion is drained away.

All the preparation that has gone on, the endless photographing, the endless air-raids, the constant practice of the men in landing, or in whatever their specialty may be—is now ended.

THE FACT that boys you know have been waiting with an almost desperate feeling for this day, when all their training would be tested, made you dread it and yet hope for it.

This is the beginning of a long, hard fight, a fight for ports where heavy material of war must be landed, a fight for airfields in the countries in which we must operate. Day by day, miles of country may be taken, lost and retaken.

That is what we have to face, what the boys who are over there have been preparing for and what must be done before the day of victory. That day is coming surely. It will be a happy and glorious day. How can we hasten it?

THE BEST WAY in which we can help is by doing our jobs here better than ever before, no matter what these jobs may be. Every unauthorized and unwarranted strike is an added danger to the boys over there, and a man or woman leaving a war plant today adds to some soldier's load. But we should remember that every employer who forces his employees into a position from which they see no way out except to strike is as guilty as the strikers. I have seen so many condemnations of strikers, but I have seen little recognition that there are always two sides to any dispute.

Racing, Baseball In Action Again

By JACK CONWAY

BOSTON AND Massachusetts sports programs were to be resumed today following D-day cancellations. The Suffolk Downs horse plant staged its original Tuesday card this afternoon while the dog tracks at Wonderland Park and Raynham Park hold their postponed greyhound programs tonight.

It was not necessary for the Red Sox to call off their game as Tuesday was an open date. The Sox were to open a series with the Yanks at Fenway Park this afternoon. Unless there is a special emergency the horse, dog and baseball promoters will conduct their usual programs from now on.

Larry Bolvin

It was the proper as well as the wise thing to cancel sports offerings when word of the invasion was received. As Mayor Maurice J. Tobin so well put it in his radio address yesterday morning, it was a day for prayer and for work and not for celebration.

With thousands of American youngsters storming beachheads in France and dropping from the clouds in parachutes, no one had any heart or desire for sports. The large crowds in the churches and the serious talk of men and women everywhere showed how our people felt about the most important military move in the history of the world.

Place for Sports

SPORTS WILL resume with the thought that if it is necessary for them to discontinue they will readily do so. The most important thing for all of us is to win the war quickly and decisively, and anything that interferes with this program has no place in the life of America.

Now that the first shock of the invasion is over, the American people will work harder than ever. They will make whatever sacrifices are needed. They realize that for our armed forces overseas to be successful they must have our undivided support.

There is a place for sports in this home front program, but, as on D-Day, the promoters of the various forms of athletics and entertainment must continue to realize that they must subordinate their own interests to the war effort.

Boston and Massachusetts sports promoters proved on D-Day that they do not place the making of money above their interest in the future of their country, and those millions of American men and women now overseas in the battle areas.

'Aid Disabled Veterans

D-DAY FOUND the Callahan A. C., of which Eddie Mack and Jack O'Brien are the promoters, agreeing to give 10 per cent of the gross receipts of a series of boxing bouts they plan to stage at National League Park to the Disabled Veterans' Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser.

The first of these bouts will bring together Manuel Ortiz, Mexican world's bantamweight champion, and Larry Bolvin of Providence on June 29.

Ortiz today is the most colorful fighter in the world. He once appeared in the All-American tournament at the Boston Garden and gained a split decision over Bolvin.

The winner of the Ortiz-Bolvin match will clash with Willie Pep, world's champion, in an over-weight match. Later there will be a title battle between Ortiz and Pep.

It is one of the finest boxing programs ever arranged for Boston. The fact the Disabled Veterans' Fund will receive 10 per cent of the receipts will give the matches greater appeal.

Jockeys on Strike

I CAN appreciate the feelings of the jockeys at the Delaware track when they were told racing was to be held on D-Day. Most of these youngsters have been denied the privilege of joining the armed forces on account of old injuries or lack of weight. Their hearts were with other American youngsters along the shores of France rather than on their day's riding assignments.

The jockeys agreed to call off their strike when it was explained to them that charity would get the receipts of the day's racing card.

Medford High Meets Cantabs

Undefeated Medford High School, winner of 16 straight games and champion of the Greater Boston Baseball League will attempt a step into the semi-final rounds of the East State play-offs tomorrow afternoon, facing Cambridge Latin, runner-up of the Suburban Circuit in the opener at Braves Field.

The nightcap will find Lawrence of the Essex County loop squaring off against Natick.

Winners of these games will collide in the second game of the Friday program for the right to move into the final round Saturday. Conquerors of today's twin bill, which pitted Newton against Braintree and Brockton against Somerville, will be clashing in the first game of the Friday card.

Tracks Close Invasion Day

NEW YORK (AP)—Major race tracks throughout the country called off their programs yesterday in observation of D-Day.

New York, Chicago, Boston and Detroit tracks announced darkening of their plants soon after word was received that the Allies had landed in France.

Pascoag Park in New England, Charlottesville in West Virginia, and River Downs in Ohio also canceled their races, but Delaware State Park, Bay Meadows and Ascot Park in Ohio remained open. The day's profit at Bay Meadows are earmarked for war charities.

Profits Go to Hospital

STAN MATTEO, Cal., June 7 (AP)—Ahead all the way, A. G. Tarn's Bulwark won the feature mile and one-sixteenth event at Bay Meadows race track by two and one-half lengths from Cossack post yesterday.

Bulwark, timed in 1:45 1-5, paid $9.80, $4.90 and $2.80. Cossack Post returned $4.50 and $2.90, and Matador, paired with Chiclette as an entry, paid $2.30 for the show.

In celebration of D-Day, the entire day's profits were earmarked for Army and Navy Hospital.

Key Men Rejected, Sox Take on New Life

By BILL GRIMES

Heartened by the fact that Bobby Doerr, Roy Partee and Leon Culberson had been temporarily rejected, the Red Sox were mentally, if not wholly physically, fit for their five-game series with the New York Yankees, which opened this afternoon at Fenway Park.

TEARS INTO YANKEES—Tex Hughson is nominated to face slab for Red Sox against the New York Yankees today at Fenway Park. Tex has won six and lost two.

Pirates Lead In 1-Run Wins

By JACK HAND
(AP Sports Writer)

If winning tight, one-run games means a pennant, the experts say—the second place Pittsburgh Pirates and the fourth place Chicago White Sox today are bound for the big league fates.

As the majors resumed operations after a two-day rest period caused jointly by the schedule makers and D-Day, a survey of the first quarter of the league races revealed that of 341 games played, roughly one-third, or 118, have been decided by a single score.

Frankie Frisch's Pirates have the best record of pulling those tight ones out of the fire, winning eight of 11 for a .727 percentage, far above the Cincinnati Reds who placed next by taking 10 of 18. Brooklyn and Chicago have won at least as many close ones as they've lost.

Strangely enough the St. Louis Cardinals have grabbed but four of nine close fits, but lead the league by four games, indicating they don't often make it close. The New York Giants have the poorest record, winning but six of 15.

Just as doping the American League race is strictly a job to do with a blindfold and a hat pin, separating the best "clutch" teams calls for a decimal point expert. The bare fact that the league standings show only five and a half games from top to bottom indicates there is no standout club.

The White Sox have the edge in one-run games by taking seven of 11, but Detroit with 10 of 16 is close behind. Cleveland has been hard pressed to get an even break in 12 starts. Washington has had the worst luck in the close ones, losing 10 of 15.

Vosmik Takes Another Whirl at Big Leagues

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP)—Outfielder Joe Vosmik, who hasn't been able to come to terms with the Minneapolis club of the American Ass'n. will be given a tryout with the Washington Senators. Pres. Clark Griffith announced yesterday.

Griffith said Vosmik, now working in Cleveland, will be given a contract if the tryout is satisfactory. The purchase price and salary terms already have been arranged with the Minneapolis club and Vosmik, Griffith reported.

A couple of hours after they arrived yesterday, Doerr, Partee and Culberson reported at a local draft board for their physicals. Although the players departed without any information on the outcome of the examinations, the board announced before noon that all three had been rejected but were liable for a re-examination at a later date.

The Red Sox are only three games behind the Yankees, who win against tight losses which is very bad for a Yankee club. The world's champions were leading the league by a margin of 2½ games when they started the trip. But their record for the jaunt through the hinterlands was five wins against eight losses.

INDIANS WRECK SOX

After dropping three out of four to the Browns at their first port of call on their last trip, the Red Sox met their "cousins" the White Sox in a game that was a foreboding following a night game, the Red Sox climbed aboard a midnight train for Cleveland, arriving at 6:10 a. m. and that afternoon, they were scheduled to play a double-header against the Indians. The weather was threatening but the Red Sox were all in after the night game and the sleeper jump from the Windy City and as a result Cleveland took four straight from them.

"If we had a chance to relax a bit after that night game, I declared Manager Joe Cronin, 'we'd have given a far better account of ourselves on the trip. But, even so, I'm satisfied with the result. However, I would like to have a few words with the American League schedule makers, who arranged for us to play a double-header on the afternoon following a night game and make an overnight jump from Chicago to Cleveland.'

MISSSED JOHNSON

"Of course, we missed Bob Johnson, who had been out of the lineup with a bad hand," continued the skipper. "No, my legs didn't let me down. I was so exhausted after that double-header in Cleveland, I took myself out."

Tex Hughson and Ernie Bonafant, who were pitching this afternoon, Hughson with a record of six wins against two defeats, beat the Tigers last Saturday, and about an hour after he arrived home on Monday, he was at Fenway Park warming up with Mike Ryba doing the catching.

During the game, he had with Eddie May last Sunday in Detroit, "Skeeter" Newsome injured his leg and may not play this afternoon. He was treated for a couple of hours yesterday by Trainer Win Green but if he's not right Eddie Lake will be at shortstop.

The Red Sox and Yankees will play a twilight game tomorrow, starting at 6 o'clock.

Hawthorne Donates $100,000 to Charity

CHICAGO, June 7 (AP)—Two war agencies today received checks totaling more than $100,000, representing the net profits of the Memorial Day charity program at the Hawthorne race track.

The Red Cross received $67,771, and the Chicago Servicemen's Center $34,885.

CHICAGO, June 7 (INS)—Ray Schalk, regarded as one of the greatest baseball catches of all time, started his new duties as scout for the Chicago Cubs today. He was signed by Gen. Manager T. Gallagher.

Park League Lead May Shift

For the first time since early in the season the top rung on the Park League ladder may have a new occupant. This change came about tonight when first place Navy Yard and second place Casey Club play their second game of the week at Lee Park, South Boston.

Monday night the Dorchester team, who had won their first game, their first defeat of the season, thereby moving to within one point of first place. And a victory for the Caseys tonight would move them to the top, one point ahead of the Navy Yard.

In the first meeting the Casey Club at Lee Park was just too much for the Charlestown club, despite its great pitching, and that's a factor that may propel last year's champions to the front. Dick Casey will send his best hurler, Bud Donald, after the triumph while Manager Frank Spanio will counter with Red Chappie or Larry Kelley and has Jim Daly to step into the relief role in case the other two are hit heavily.

At Cleveland Circle, Trailways, that have been going along smoothly in the last two weeks, tackle the powerful Arsenal and the West Roxbury A. A. meets Lawley's Shipyard at Neponset.

The early leader, Lawley's, have hit a snag of late while the visitors have come to life. The Neponset club, with its outstanding pitcher, will try to snap the bad luck streak and get going again and the West Roxbury's, with a chance to move up in the standings, will try to spill the shipbuilders again.

Rate Parker New Sensation

By LAWTON CARVER
NEW YORK, June 7 (INS)—The greatest schoolboy runner since the heyday of Jesse Owens—and possibly the best ever—will be unveiled during the National A. A. U. track and field championships in New York during June 17-18.

His name is Charley Parker of San Antonio, Tex., who was slated to make his bid on the big time last year, when, just two weeks before the nationals, he was stricken with appendicitis.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., a man generally known as Mr. Track and Field, firmly believes that the tall and gangling young Texan stands a chance of wiping out all the dash marks ever written in the books.

AFTER TWO RECORDS

The marks that Parker will shoot at here are the 100-meter and the 200-meter. Owens holds the world standards of 10.2 and 20.3. In fact, as a schoolboy, the 17-year-old Parker, already has bettered Owens' best schoolboy performance for the 220 yards, which he negotiated in 20.6.

Parker has run in 14 races this season and set nine new records of one kind and another besides being two others. He is undefeated since 1941. He has won 49 dashes without a defeat, exclusive of trial heats in which he also has always been the victor.

Aside from his running, the new meteor in track and field is an A-1 student and president of the Jefferson High School student council at San Antonio.

fighters and supplies are brought ashore in landing craft.

Invasion

Flying in one of the bombers over the French invasion coast, Associated Press Artist Howell Dodd sketched this view of the assault on Hitler Europe from a Ninth Air Force Marauder. He captioned his picture, "Invasion is on—our landing craft move in as the bombers prepare to drop their bombs on coastal installations."
